Kim Jong Un Has Photo Session with Teachers from Branch Schools

Kim Jong Un, chairman of the Workers' Party of Korea, chairman of the State Affairs Commission of the DPRK and supreme commander of the Korean People's Army, met and had a photo session with teachers who volunteered to work at branch schools on islands and schools in forefront line and mountainous areas.

When respected Supreme Leader Kim Jong Un appeared at the venue of the photo session, the teachers enthusiastically welcomed him.

He spoke highly of pure patriotism displayed by the teachers with conscience and devotion as revolutionaries responsible for the future of the country, with the transparent faith and white gem-like loyalty with which they unsparingly devote themselves to settling the issues worried by the Party and to carrying out the work which is wished by the Party, whether they are known or not and appreciated or not, he said, calling on the whole society to put them forward and learn from their outlook on the revolutionary life and the future.

He had a photo session with the teachers.

Present at the photo session were Choe Thae Bok, vice-chairman of the WPK Central Committee, and leading officials of the WPK Central Committee and the education field.
