What lies at the root of the “legitimacy” of strategic asset deployment?

The atmosphere of criticism in the international community is growing day by day as the "Washington Declaration", which stipulates the will for the most hostile and aggressive action against our dignified state, is being ridiculed.

With this declaration, the international community as a whole, including the neighboring countries, responded with “a catalyst for another nuclear crisis on the Korean peninsula”, “an act of attracting wildcats to the Northeast Asian region”, and “a vicious cycle of escalating tension and arms race in the region”. While locking in with a precarious decision to drive inside, it is ringing a meaningful alarm about the negative repercussions it will cause.

It is not enough to create constant instability on the Korean peninsula with rhetorical threats and aggressive military hostilities, and today, the international community is against the United States and the South Korean puppet hooligans who are trying to drive the entire region deep into the crucible of a terrifying thermonuclear war. is a fair evaluation of Amidst such circumstances, on April 28, the United States raised the bizarre rumor that the deployment of the US strategic nuclear submarine to the Korean peninsula does not violate the "Joint Declaration on the Denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula" and there is no legal problem, citing an official from the South Korean puppet Ministry of National Defense. Put

It is the height of unscrupulousness and arrogance unique to the United States, which uses lies and scheming.

It is a well-known fact that no one dares to deny or break down that the U.S. play in deploying nuclear strategic assets has been the main malignant factor in escalating tension on the Korean peninsula before discussing its “legitimacy.”

The objective reality in which the tension index in the region soared explosively every time the pitiful roar of US strategic bombers resonated over the Korean

Peninsula in the past and whenever nuclear aircraft carriers and nuclear submarines appeared incessantly in the waters of the Korean Peninsula clearly proves this.

Especially since the beginning of this year, the military and political situation on the Korean peninsula has not been able to escape from the swamp of instability due to the United States' various maneuvers to deploy nuclear strategic assets, which have been aimed at the DPRK since the beginning of this year. is running without hesitation toward the limit of I am no different than the U.S. this time by pushing them out of their hands and painting their reckless act of nuclear confrontation, which can neither be excused nor concealed by anything, with the rhetorical phrase of "legitimacy."

Rare nuclear warfare that systematically destroyed and devastated the international nuclear non-proliferation system and pushed the Korean peninsula more deeply into the crisis of nuclear war. There is a way to escape from criminal responsibility.

In addition, the purpose of this is to provide a "legitimate cause" to attract more massive strategic assets in the future by giving "legitimacy" to the regular deployment of strategic nuclear submarines to the Korean peninsula.

Based on this, it is the hegemonic ambition that the United States is pursuing to turn the whole area of south Korea into the largest nuclear outpost in the Far East and use it effectively for realizing the strategy for world domination.

If the United States thinks that it can mislead the truth of the situation and invert black and white with a three-penny malongan, there is no greater miscalculation than that.

Even if the U.S. devises absurd sophistry such as "legitimacy", its black identity as the aggressor threatening the peace and security of the Korean peninsula and the region can never be covered.
